

Crewmates of the Mill Creek Yacht Club

Anyone who floats with us on the long-abused but resurgent Mill Creek is a crewmate of the Mill Creek Yacht Club. Paddling the Mill Creek is fun with a purpose. We not only enjoy recreation, but also learn about the stream, exchange ideas, raise public awareness, report problems, find opportunities for improvement, and rediscover our connection to a public waterway. We like showing the creek to dignitaries and the media but realize that local businesses, landowners and citizens are vital to our cause. The Mill Creek is rich in heritage. It has a lot of untapped potential and shows many personalities, depending on time and place. Most crewmates agree our urban stream is a fascinating place to visit. It's plain to see that the Mill Creek is making a comeback.

We launched our maiden voyage in April 1994 as an antidote to all the board room meetings that devoted hours to Mill Creek discussion but nary a minute to Mill Creek experience. Over the last 23 years, we have escorted 1,017 crewmates on 164 urban stream adventures to explore more than 26 of the Mill Creek main stem's 28 miles, nearly 8 tributary miles and roughly 4 lake miles. Some voyages triggered corrective actions by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Ohio EPA, Metropolitan Sewer District, Village of Glendale, Hamilton County Public Health, streamside companies and others. We have been out every month of the year in sun, rain, wind, snow and lightning, which forced us to shelter under bridges. We have started before sunrise and finished after sunset. Nine trips were lit by a full moon. One trip featured a day of fishing with Buckeye United Fly Fishers and 38 trips have been stream cleanups. We have dragged our canoes over riffles during low-water conditions and we have floated over low-head dams while the Ohio River was at flood stage. Our West Fork Mill Creek trips ride on water releases from Winton Lake. We are often guided by Dr. Michael C. Miller, a U.C. professor emeritus of biology.

We have planted willow live-stakes, hacked through honeysuckle bushes, sawed away logjams, inventoried discharge pipes, scouted project sites, documented failing infrastructure, and removed tons of junk from the stream corridor. The number of people on the water for a Yacht Club outing has ranged from 1 to 43 paddlers. (The solo paddler was a veteran kayaker scouting the need for logjam removal. He stayed in touch by cell phone.) Most trips are jointly planned with the staff of the Mill Creek Watershed Council of Communities, which provides valuable support for liability insurance, registrations, communications, education, storage, T-shirts, water, snacks, hand cleaner, canoes, paddles, life jackets, supplies, logistics and publicity.

Yacht Club trips also have ventured onto East Fork Mill Creek, West Fork Mill Creek from Winton Lake, the lower West Fork from Mt. Airy Forest, Beaver Run from Springdale, a flooded streamside detention basin, a large storm sewer, the Ohio River, Winton Lake, Sharon Lake and the Licking River, which shares a pre-glacial river valley with the Mill Creek. Much of the Mill Creek has become familiar, but it never stops amazing us. Maketewah (Indian name for Mill Creek) still holds unrevealed secrets. The Mill Creek is coming back and you are invited to join the campaign. It's a matter of civic pride.

Below are 1,017 people known to have paddled with the Mill Creek Yacht Club as early as April 1994 and as late as February 20th, 2017. Most descriptions are linked in time to crewmates' first Yacht Club voyages. Over the course of 22½ years, most crewmates have graduated college, changed jobs or moved on to other endeavors. Many crewmates have taken multiple trips, so the Yacht Club has generated more than 2,200 personal experiences on the Mill Creek.

This list does not include the names of nearly 600 people who visited the lower Mill Creek during the morning of August 6th, 2016, as an optional Paddlefest side trip from the Ohio River. These unlisted crewmates paddled through history as they toured six bridges and the Mill Creek Barrier Dam near the mouth of the Mill Creek. Paddlefest patrons are welcome to future Mill Creek Yacht Club voyages so their names can be recorded for posterity.

1. Tyler Achberger, U.C. student who paddled from Twin Creek Preserve in Sharonville to Reading on Sept. 5, 2015
2. Matt Ackermann, first generation American whose father immigrated from Germany in 1954, paddled from Reading to Carthage on June 25, 2016
3. Karen Adams, landscape architect and former executive director of the Mill Creek Watershed Council of Communities
4. Angela Adkins, paddled the Mill Creek in June 2015 on an outing for Ohio EPA, ODOT and ODNR
5. Dave Agricola, mechanical systems project manager, brother of Jeff and Greg Agricola
6. Greg Agricola, real estate agent, brother of Jeff and Dave Agricola
7. Jeff Agricola, Springdale's public works director, Yacht Club's problem solver, photographer, astronomer, meteorologist
8. Frieda Akerstrom, University of Cincinnati student
9. Jeremy Alberts, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
10. Lyan Alkhudairy, paddled a lower Mill Creek roundtrip on July 13, 2016, with Dr. Michael C. Miller's summer class in aquatic ecology
11. Hollis Allen, ecologist for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers
12. Jeff Allen, citizen with two aluminum canoes
13. Vince Andwan, citizen who took part in Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration in September 2013

14. Karen Anderson, member of the Sierra Club's Miami Group
15. Scott Anderson, president of Enerfab, a company that fabricates steel tanks alongside the Mill Creek
16. Eric Anspach, volunteered for the 22nd Annual Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe in Reading, Lockland and Evendale
17. Raya M. Armstrong, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
18. Pete Andrysiak, captain with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers
19. Charles Anness, assistant prosecuting attorney for the Hamilton County Prosecutor's Office, paddled on May 17, 2015
20. Ali Anoff, Hamilton County resident with nice fingernails, first paddled on the record-setting October 25th, 2015, float with 42 other people
21. Karen Arnette, board of trustees member for Environmental Community Organization
22. Franz Arnold, General Mills employee who volunteered for a stream cleanup on June 19, 2014
23. Bob Ashbrock, Reading City Councilman at Large
24. Alicia Assanuvat, Procter & Gamble employee who volunteered for the Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe in Reading/Lockland on April 17, 2015
25. Elissa Austing, paddled the Mill Creek from Reading to Elmwood Place in June 2014
26. Ren Austing, paddled the Mill Creek from Reading to Elmwood Place in June 2014
27. Patty Bachman, intern at OKI Regional Council of Governments
28. Adam Balz, Pegasus Tech Services contractor to the U.S. EPA, Clifton resident who first paddled on the record-setting October 25th, 2015, float with 42 others
29. Michelle Balz, assistant solid waste manager for the Hamilton County Recycling & Solid Waste District
30. Mark Bambach, paddled from Evendale to Reading on Sept. 27, 2015 during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration
31. Elizabeth Bancroft, Xavier University student who paddled 3¼ miles through strong headwinds from Caldwell Park to Salway Park on April 2, 2016
32. Herb Banyea, street construction and maintenance supervisor for City of Sharonville
33. Rachel Barb, paddled the Mill Creek in June 2015 on an outing for Ohio EPA, ODOT and ODNR
34. Phil Barr-Bear, Miami University geography student who knows how to look cool
35. Elena Bass, member of Imago in the Price Hill neighborhood
36. Scott Bateman, distribution supervisor for Industrial Paint & Supply and Yacht Club co-founder
37. Roy Bauer, friendly kayaker who paddled 1.7 miles of the lower Mill Creek from the Ohio River to Western Hills Viaduct on Saturday, October 1, 2016
38. Greg Bauerle, kayaking enthusiast who took part in the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration
39. Sandy Bauerle, wife of Greg Bauerle
40. Nick Baute, technician for CET public television station in Cincinnati
41. Beau Batton, member of Sierra Club's Miami Group
42. Erica Bechtel, 16-year-old student at Princeton High School, designated as the 1,000th crewmate after paddling the lower Mill Creek on October 22, 2016
43. Greg "Bosun" Bechtel, avid paddler who joined the Yacht Club on March 22, 2014, on the Sharonville-to-Reading trip; now a multi-talented veteran
44. Hank Bechtel, son of Greg and Susan Bechtel
45. Judith Blackburn Bechtel, mother of Greg Bechtel, paddled from Arlington Heights to Carthage on July 24, 2015
46. Susan Bechtel, wife of Greg Bechtel
47. Glen Beckham, civil engineer for U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Louisville District
48. Brooke Beery, University of Cincinnati student of environmental journalism
49. Gena Bell, Chief of Staff for Hamilton County Commissioner Chris Monzel
50. Rachael Belz, Southwest Ohio program director for Ohio Citizen Action
51. Robert "Bo" Bemmes, Reading City Councilman (Republican) who has since been elected mayor several times
52. Lawrence F. Benken, Monfort Heights resident who paddled several times including the July 21, 2016, Paddlefest exploration of the Mill Creek mouth

53. Anzia M. Bennett, student of Environmental Field Program at Antioch College
54. John Bentley, director of landscape architecture for Bayer Becker
55. Cara Berding, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
56. Ed Berger, gonzo volunteer who made his mark on the 4th Annual Upper Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe by coaching and cajoling hard manual labor
57. Mark Bersani, owner of Loveland Canoe & Kayak, explored the Mill Creek's mouth on July 21, 2016, for a Paddlefest side trip preview
58. Lindsey Berting, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
59. Scott Beseler, Soapbox Media photographer who paddled in 2016 for: Mill Creek meanders from toxic channel to genuine asset in just 20 years
60. Mark Besserman, inducted for Voyage #145 from Twin Creek Preserve in Sharonville to Koenig Park in Reading on May 28, 2016
61. Don Betz, accomplished kayaker with Cincy Paddlers
62. Scott Betz, University of Cincinnati student, paddled from Sharonville to Reading on May 17, 2015
63. Kelsey Bevis, University of Cincinnati student
64. Radhika Bhargava, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
65. Kathy Binns, chief of staff for Hamilton County Commissioner Todd Portune, took part in the record-setting October 25th, 2015, float with 42 other people
66. Allie Bishop, Miami University geography student who had really nice makeup on the Mill Creek
67. Jim Bissell, special education teacher at Winton Woods High School
68. Kristen Bitonte, a mother who paddled the pond at Liberty Reserves Park on July 21, 2016
69. Bitonte child #1, paddled the pond at Liberty Reserves Park on July 21, 2016
70. Bitonte child #2, paddled the pond at Liberty Reserves Park on July 21, 2016
71. Mike Black, specialist, National Technology Transfer Center
72. Carrie Blackmore-Smith, environmental and outdoor recreation reporter for The Cincinnati Enquirer, paddled the lower Mill Creek on October 22, 2016
73. Annie-Laurie Blair, clinical professor of journalism at Miami University
74. Megan Blake, Community Development & Building Department, City of Wyoming
75. Mike Bland, teacher at Great Oaks and Live Oaks high schools, paddled the lower Mill Creek in July 2015 for a summer teachers' course
76. Larry Bloomfield, inducted for Voyage #145 from Twin Creek Preserve in Sharonville to Koenig Park in Reading on May 28, 2016
77. Brian Bohl, stream specialist for Hamilton County Soil and Water Conservation District
78. Dana Boll, friendly Norwood environmentalist who works as a freelance graphic designer
79. Cassandra Boller, employee of Kao USA Inc., performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe on Sept. 12, 2014
80. Kathleen A. Bollmer, paddled the Mill Creek in June 2015 on an outing for Ohio EPA, ODOT and ODNR
81. Joe Bolt, U.C. student who paddled from Twin Creek Preserve in Sharonville to Reading on Sept. 5, 2015
82. Gerald Bonecutter, Northside friend of Gary Skitt (Bonecutter & Skitt: cool)
83. Monica Bonecutter, intrepid wife of Gerald Bonecutter
84. Matthew Book, University of Cincinnati student
85. Leroy Boone, MSD's operator of the Mill Creek Wastewater Treatment Plant
86. Paul Booth, member of Cincinnati City Council (Democrat)
87. Ralph Boss, Fidelity Investments executive who lives in the City of Wyoming
88. Tom Bosse, retired lawyer who seeks outdoor recreation, first paddled the Mill Creek on December 12, 2015 from Sharonville to Reading
89. Keith Bowers, president of Biohabitats, Inc.
90. Bill Boyd, Jr., board of directors member for the Cincinnati Chapter of the Izaak Walton League
91. Diana Boyd, self-taught native plant expert and site restorationist

92. Kurt Boyer, University of Cincinnati student
93. Don Brannen, ecologist and community center director for Cincinnati Recreation Commission
94. Donny Brannen, 18-year-old son of Don Brannen
95. Jason Brecht, performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe in the Hartwell/Carthage area with 15 other volunteers from Kao Corporation
96. Molly Brenham student of Environmental Field Program at Antioch College
97. Paula Breslin, University of Cincinnati student of environmental journalism
98. Cathy Brewer, wife of Dick Brewer, participated in the 100th voyage on May 4, 2014, and 2015 Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration Float
99. Dick Brewer, employee of Duke Energy and volunteer for Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe
100. Robaline "Daisy" Brinkman, first paddled the Mill Creek on September 18th, 2016, on the ReCreation Celebration trip from Evendale to Reading
101. Melanie Brokaw, Mill Creek Watershed Council of Communities and Liberty Township
102. Nicole Broner, Xavier University student who paddled 3¼ miles through strong headwinds from Caldwell Park to Salway Park on April 2, 2016
103. Katie Bross, college student and daughter of Raymond Bross
104. Raymond Bross, supervising engineer for Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
105. Elizabeth Brown, community builder for U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development
106. Jessica Brown, reporter, The Cincinnati Enquirer
107. R. Jeffrey Brown, environmental planner for Parsons Brinckerhoff Inc. and accomplished bird watcher
108. Felicia Brugger, University of Cincinnati student
109. Laura Brunner, president of the Port of Greater Cincinnati Development Authority
110. Paul Brunner, husband of Laura Brunner
111. Mark Brush, college student and former school program coordinator for Mill Creek Restoration Project
112. Dae'von Bryant, paddled the Mill Creek in June 2015 on an outing for Ohio EPA, ODOT and ODNR
113. Paul Buelterman, visited the mouth of the Mill Creek on August 6, 2016, during a Paddlefest side trip
114. Dave Buesking, former chair of Mill Creek Watershed Council and public works director of City of Forest Park
115. Dr. Ishi Buffam, assistant professor of biology at the University of Cincinnati
116. Dave Bulman, GE engineer interested in industrial archaeology, friend of Greg and Susan Bechtel, paddled on Oct. 25, 2014
117. Kathy Bulman, wife of Dave Bulman, friend of Greg and Susan Bechtel, paddled on Oct. 25, 2014
118. Tom Bullock, Social Security agent, cousin of Commodore Koehler, paddled on Oct. 25, 2014
119. Aaron Burkhardt, water resources engineer who volunteered for cleanups by canoe in Reading/Lockland and West Chester Township
120. Don Burrell, bicycle/pedestrian coordinator for OKI Regional Council of Governments
121. Tim Bushnell, McKie Recreation Center
122. Isaac Busken-Jovanovich, lower Mill Creek cleanup volunteer for the Yacht Club's collaboration with Living Lands & Waters on July 29th, 2016
123. Bonnie Buthker, paddled the Mill Creek in June 2015 on an outing for Ohio EPA, ODOT and ODNR
124. David Butsch, former public works director for City of Springdale
125. Heather Rae Byer, paddled the Mill Creek in June 2015 on an outing for Ohio EPA, ODOT and ODNR
126. Mark Byron, freelance photographer with a pigtailed wool cap, first paddled on the record-setting October 25th, 2015, float with 42 other people
127. Zach Byron, son of Mark Byron, first paddled on the record-setting October 25th, 2015, float from Mitchell Avenue to the Ohio River with 42 other people
128. Phyllis Calhoun administrative assistant for the Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
129. Kelly Callahan, employee of Metropolitan Sewer District and student at Cincinnati State
130. Bob Campbell, deputy director of the Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati

131. Daniel Canfield, employee of Cincinnati Zoo & Botanical Garden, paddled the lower Mill Creek in July 2015 for a summer teachers' course
132. Doug Carper, one of 15 new crewmates who joined during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration of 2014
133. Maria Carrelli, University of Cincinnati student of environmental journalism
134. Mackenzie Carlson, University of Cincinnati student of environmental journalism
135. Joseph Caminiti, volunteered for the 22nd Annual Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe in Reading, Lockland and Evendale
136. Dick Carlton, wastewater engineer for Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
137. Bonnie Carpenter, citizen who took part in Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration in September 2013
138. Chris Carr, retired mechanical engineer for Procter & Gamble, now a global ecological researcher
139. Andrea Carrao, performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe in the Hartwell/Carthage area with 15 other volunteers from Kao Corporation
140. Chris Carroll, naturalist at Caldwell Nature Preserve for Cincinnati Parks
141. Tina Carter, citizen who took part in Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration in September 2013
142. Angela Carter, inducted for Voyage #145 from Twin Creek Preserve in Sharonville to Koenig Park in Reading on May 28, 2016
143. Eau Caseda, citizen who took part in Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration in September 2013
144. Kip Caseda, citizen who took part in Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration in September 2013
145. Fritz Casey Leininger, citizen who took part in Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration
146. Kate Casey-Leininger, daughter of Fritz Casey-Leininger
147. John Casnellie, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
148. Jimmy Nate Castells, a self-described "alien paddler and fisherman" who visited the lower Mill Creek on August 6, 2016, during a Paddlefest sidetrip
149. Maddie Casto, 9-year-old daughter of Tim Casto
150. Tim Casto, professional engineer with The Kleingers Group, advises Millcreek Valley Conservancy District
151. Nicholas Caudill, University of Cincinnati student
152. Rob Caudill, water quality director for Hamilton County General Health District
153. John Cavanaugh, paddled a lower Mill Creek roundtrip on July 13, 2016, with Dr. Michael C. Miller's summer class in aquatic ecology
154. Manuel Ceja, sustainability coordinator for Procter & Gamble, volunteered for the Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe in Reading/Lockland on April 17, 2015
155. Avi Claire Chabot, high school student, daughter of Matt and Kathy Chabot
156. Kathy Chabot, art teacher at Annunciation Catholic School
157. Marshall Chabot, student at Ohio State University, son of Matt and Kathy Chabot
158. Matt Chabot, president of Norwood Hardware, a home remodeling business along the Mill Creek in Evendale
159. Steve Chabot, congressman (Republican)
160. Henry Chapman, MSD's tour guide for Mill Creek Wastewater Treatment Plant
161. Kyle Chapman, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
162. Gerald Checco, superintendent of park operations for Cincinnati Parks
163. Chris Cheek, oddball writer from London, England; known to wear a kilt on occasion; excellent at Limey slang; ship's poet
164. Jeff Chen, director of digital media, Pick Up America
165. Riqing Chen, Chinese citizen studying geographic information systems at University of Cincinnati
166. Holly Christmann, "Red," handles recycling and solid waste matters for Hamilton County Environmental Services
167. Julie Christner, paddled the lower Mill Creek in July 2015 for a summer teachers' course
168. Laura Christobek, Procter & Gamble employee who volunteered for the Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe on April 17, 2015
169. Emily Cigolle, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015

170. William Cilley, inducted for Voyage #145 from Twin Creek Preserve in Sharonville to Koenig Park in Reading on May 28, 2016
171. Rob Clark, paddled a lower Mill Creek roundtrip on July 13, 2016, with Dr. Michael C. Miller's summer class in aquatic ecology
172. Twyla Clark, student of Environmental Field Program at Antioch College
173. Kathy Clayton, employee of Cincinnati Health Department
174. Marcus Clayton, Cincinnati Park Board greenspace manager
175. Hannah Clements, paddled a lower Mill Creek roundtrip on July 13, 2016, with Dr. Michael C. Miller's summer class in aquatic ecology
176. Katie Clontz, paddled a lower Mill Creek roundtrip on July 13, 2016, with Dr. Michael C. Miller's summer class in aquatic ecology
177. Carrie Cochran, photographer, The Cincinnati Enquirer
178. Rich Cogen, executive director of Ohio River Foundation
179. Leslie Cohen, program director for the Mill Creek Watershed Council of Communities
180. Robert Cole, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in June 2015
181. Jamie Coleman, former grad student of Dr. Miller who cleaned up the Mill Creek with 15 other Kao volunteers on August 26, 2016
182. Erin Collin, Miami University student of environmental journalism
183. Laura Collins, intern for Mill Creek Watershed Council, inducted for Voyage #145 from Sharonville to Reading on May 28, 2016
184. Rachel Comte, University of Cincinnati student
185. Denise Conner, resident who paddled on March 22, 2014 from Twin Creek Preserve to Reading Public Works
186. Rick Conner, husband of Denise Conner
187. Dr. Dennis Conner, botanist and member of Northside Greenspace
188. Charles Cooley, president of Hydro Mechanics Systems Ltd.
189. Brittany Cook, employee of Kao USA Inc., performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe on Sept. 12, 2014
190. Sherry Coolidge, reporter, The Cincinnati Enquirer
191. Robin Corathers, executive director of Mill Creek Restoration Project
192. Bob Cordes, assistant chief engineer of Millcreek Valley Conservancy District
193. Casey Coston, Soapbox Media writer who reported in May 2016: Mill Creek meanders from toxic channel to genuine asset in just 20 years
194. Linda Cournoier, executive assistant for U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Louisville District
195. Sophie Cox, granddaughter of John Mangan, business recruiter for the Mill Creek Watershed Council of Communities
196. Alexandria Cranmer, paddled the Mill Creek in June 2015 on an outing for Ohio EPA, ODOT and ODNR
197. Bob Cregge, avid sportsman with Buckeye United Fly Fishers who showed how to catch largemouth bass from the Mill Creek on July 10, 2016
198. Rodney Crice, consultant with R.D. Zande & Associates
199. Kerry Crossen, events manager for Keep Cincinnati Beautiful
200. Georgia Crowell, member of South Western Ohio Trails Association
201. Chris Cubbison, intrepid paddler who volunteered for the 20th and 22nd Annual Mill Creek Cleanups by Canoe in Reading/Lockland
202. Janice Cubbison, wife of Chris Cubbison, equally intrepid for the 20th and 22nd Annual Cleanups
203. Mary Cullum, a former ODNR employee who paddled the Mill Creek in June 2015 with Ohio EPA, ODOT and ODNR
204. Steve Culver, nature lover, life of the party, Honorary Pirate Cap'n Mascot of the Yacht Club
205. George Cummings, district conservationist for U.S. Natural Resources Conservation Service
206. Nic Daggett, slender young man, paddled the Mill Creek from Reading to Carthage on June 25, 2016
207. Barry Dalton, plant ecologist for Northern Kentucky's Environmental Resource Management Center
208. Valerie LaDuca, "river-rat" formerly from Cleveland, first experienced the Mill Creek on October 22, 2016, by paddling 3¾ miles from Millvale to the Ohio River

209. Steve Dana, member of Smart Growth Coalition for Greater Cincinnati & Northern Kentucky
210. Claire Darley, member of Northside Greenspace and artist
211. Amelie Davis, Miami University professor of geography who started life in Paris, France
212. Bill Davis, pavement engineer for Ohio Department of Transportation, District 8
213. Kay Davis, photographer and writer for Evendale Historical Society
214. Susan Dawes, biologist and water quality scientist for Procter & Gamble Co.
215. Jeff Dean, serves Finneytown Civic Association and works in wastewater treatment for the Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
216. Diantha Decker, watershed coordinator for the Mill Creek Watershed Council of Communities
217. Eleanor Demaree, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
218. Charles DeVoe, U.C. student who paddled from Twin Creek Preserve in Sharonville to Reading on Sept. 5, 2015
219. Sharon DeWees, paddled a lower Mill Creek roundtrip on July 13, 2016, with Dr. Michael C. Miller's summer class in aquatic ecology
220. Pat DeWine, member of Cincinnati City Council (Republican)
221. Kadiatou Diarra, University of Cincinnati student
222. Mark Dicken, water quality intern, OKI Regional Council of Governments
223. Matt Dickman, urban forest specialist for Cincinnati Park Board
224. Shawn Dienger, stormwater management planner for Sharonville and a U.C. student
225. Jan Dietrich, member of Sierra Club's Miami Group
226. Doug Dirksing, planner for Procter & Gamble
227. Jack Dison, environmental leader of the Procter & Gamble Chemical Plant
228. Andy Dobson, senior planner for Hamilton County Planning & Development
229. Jenna Dolhi, Miami University candidate for a doctorate in microbiology
230. Austin Donner, General Mills employee who volunteered for a stream cleanup on June 19, 2014
231. Sarah Dorger, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in June 2015
232. Zoe Doss, University of Cincinnati student
233. John Dowlin, member of Hamilton County Board of Commissioners (Republican)
234. Beth Downs, natural resources specialist, Butler Soil & Water Conservation District
235. Charles "Chuck" Downton, board of directors member for Millcreek Valley Conservancy District
236. Steven Doyle, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
237. Marcus Drevik, student of Environmental Field Program at Antioch College
238. Jamie Dria, researcher for Procter & Gamble
239. Kara Driscoll, University of Cincinnati student of environmental journalism
240. Jim Duane, executive director of Ohio-Kentucky-Indiana Regional Council of Governments
241. Donald P. Duck, a paddler from Disney World, the second happiest place on earth next to the Mill Creek
242. Dan Dudley, manager of water quality standards for Ohio EPA's Division of Surface Water
243. Annalee Duganier, greenspace planner at Ohio-Kentucky-Indiana Regional Council of Governments
244. Christina Dunker, paddled Winton Lake with Maher Kaddoura on Saturday, October 15, 2016, under the light of a hunter's moon (second full moon in autumn)
245. Wes Duren, landscape and native plant manager, Marvin's Organic Gardens
246. Johnny Dwyer, University of Cincinnati student of environmental journalism
247. Olivia Eads, U.C. geology and environmental science student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015

248. Adrienne Earley, paddled the Mill Creek in June 2015 on an outing for Ohio EPA, ODOT and ODNR
249. Parker Eberhard, University of Cincinnati student in Mike Miller's urban ecology class
250. Ken Edgell, environmental compliance specialist at Hamilton County Environmental Services
251. Linda Edwards, consultant
252. Stuart Edwards, consultant with a British accent
253. Peter Ehoodin, friend of Warren High and Allen Kroth
254. Jen Eismeier, executive director of Mill Creek Watershed Council
255. Marissa Elliott, paddled a lower Mill Creek roundtrip on July 13, 2016, with Dr. Michael C. Miller's summer class in aquatic ecology
256. Amanda Ellis, performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe in the Hartwell/Carthage area with 15 other volunteers from Kao Corporation
257. Katie Ellis, employee of Kao USA Inc., performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe on Sept. 12, 2014
258. Nancy Ellwood, executive director of Mill Creek Watershed Council
259. Alec Erickson, University of Cincinnati student
260. Veronica Erxleben, student volunteer for the Catholic Heart Work Camp in June 2014
261. Chance Eubank, Xavier University student who paddled 3¼ miles through strong headwinds from Caldwell Park to Salway Park on April 2, 2016
262. Becky Evans, stream specialist for Hamilton County Soil & Water Conservation District
263. Janet S. Everhard, medical doctor and 2016 write-in candidate for Ohio's 2nd Congressional District, paddled Mill Creek during Paddlefest 2016
264. Catie Ewen, Miami University student of environmental journalism
265. Laura Factor, paddled the Mill Creek in June 2015 on an outing for Ohio EPA, ODOT and ODNR
266. Chad Falkin, accomplished canoeist and son of Larry Falkin, intrepid like his father
267. Larry Falkin, director of Cincinnati's Office of Environmental Quality, excellent canoeist
268. Suzanne Falkin, daughter of Larry Falkin
269. Colin Faselow, son of John Faselow
270. Cora Faselow, daughter of John Faselow
271. John Faselow, loving father who experienced the wonders of the Mill Creek with his daughter and son
272. Michelle Featherstone, former chair of Mill Creek Watershed Council and assistant to mayor of Evendale
273. Celeste Feingold, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in June 2015
274. Ann Feldman, Community Kitchen volunteer for St. John United Church of Christ in Reading
275. Justin (Jesse) Feldman, Community Kitchen volunteer for St. John United Church of Christ in Reading
276. Chase Ferguson, 4-year-old son of Ron and Trish, paddled from Evendale to Reading during the 2015 Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration
277. Daniel Ferguson, son of Ron and Trish, paddled from Evendale to Reading during the 2015 Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration
278. Elizabeth Ferguson, University of Cincinnati student of environmental journalism
279. Mark Ferguson, Formica plant manager in Evendale, helped remove Little Leviathan, tires and other junk on Sunday, March 6th, 2016
280. Michael Ferguson, son of Ron and Trish, paddled from Evendale to Reading during the 2015 Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration
281. Ron Ferguson, paddled from Evendale to Reading on Sept. 27, 2015 during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration
282. Trish Ferguson, paddled from Evendale to Reading on Sept. 27, 2015 during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration
283. Brienne Fey, performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe in the Hartwell/Carthage area with 15 other volunteers from Kao Corporation
284. Lynn Fields, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
285. Dick Finan, former state legislator for 30 years and Ohio Senate President, now on Evendale Village Council
286. J. Craig Fischenich, research civil engineer for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers

287. Bernard Fishman, R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. and DJ Inform
288. Justin Flamm, Taft Law/Leadership Cincinnati, first paddled on the record-setting October 25th, 2015, float with 42 other people
289. Liam Flannery, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in June 2015
290. Dave Flege, managing officer of Valley Central Savings Bank
291. Katie Flege, college student and daughter of Dave Flege
292. Matthew Flege, high school student and son of Dave Flege
293. Bob Flischel, self-employed professional with Robert A. Flischel Photography, first paddled on the record-setting October 25th, 2015, float with 42 other people
294. Kevin Flowers, conservation director for the Cincinnati Chapter of the Izaak Walton League
295. Marsha Flowers, wife of Kevin Flowers and member of the Izaak Walton League
296. Andy Fluegemann, engineer for Ohio Department of Transportation, District 8
297. Patricia Foreman, paddled the lower Mill Creek on August 6, 2016, during a Paddlefest side trip
298. Jennifer Foust, performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe in the Hartwell/Carthage area with 15 other volunteers from Kao Corporation
299. Larry Fradkin, national director of U.S. EPA's Technology Transfer Program
300. Jessica Frank, University of Cincinnati student
301. Marla Frank, student of Dr. Mike Miller at U.C., intern to Tim McLelland at Groundwater Consortium
302. Sam Frank, 10-year-old friend of Josh Parker and a student at Wyoming Elementary School
303. Mark Franke, Northwestern Life Insurance
304. Justyne Frederick, a U.S. military veteran who visited the lower Mill Creek on August 6th, 2016, as an optional Paddlefest side trip from the Ohio River
305. Kyley Frederick, University of Cincinnati student of environmental journalism; communications intern for the Mill Creek Watershed Council
306. Mike Fremont, president of Rivers Unlimited and eldest member of the Mill Creek Yacht Club
307. Job Freeman, University of Cincinnati student
308. Alana Frew, University of Cincinnati student of environmental journalism
309. Jake Frick, water-quality intern at OKI Regional Council of Governments
310. Rachel Friedman, University of Cincinnati student
311. Meganne Frisch, Procter & Gamble employee who volunteered for the Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe in Reading/Lockland on April 17, 2015
312. John Froge, undergraduate geography student at the University of Cincinnati
313. Lynne Funke, GIS specialist for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Louisville District
314. Dave Gamstetter, natural resource manager for Cincinnati Parks
315. Timothy A. Garry, Jr., attorney at law
316. Dr. Don Geiger, botany professor at the University of Dayton
317. Kelsey Geisert, student of Environmental Field Program at Antioch College
318. Svetelina Georgiev, U.C. environmental science student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
319. Saad Ghosn, paddled from Evendale to Reading on Sept. 27, 2015 during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration
320. Carrie Gibbons, education specialist for Hamilton County Soil & Water Conservation District
321. Josh Gilbert, co-op student working on stream outlet inventory for CDS Associates, Inc.
322. Katelyn Gilkey, University of Cincinnati student
323. Jay Gilligan, internal auditor for Cincinnati Finance Department
324. John F. Gillam, Newport resident whose bucket list told him to canoe the Mill Creek
325. Rebecca Gillam, Newport resident who went along for the ride with John

326. James Gleason, University of Cincinnati student
327. Barbara Glueck, experienced the surrealism of Ivorydale while paddling from Caldwell Playground Park to Salway Park on August 27, 2016
328. Jim Godby, greenspace manager for Cincinnati Parks
329. Gary Goerl, treatment specialist for Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
330. Brandi Golday, citizen and volunteer willow planter on April Fool's Day, 2006
331. Bob Goldsberry, conservation director for Buckeye United Fly Fishers
332. Chad "Red Shoes" Goldstein, volunteered for the 22nd Annual Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe in Reading, Lockland and Evendale
333. Charlie Gonzalez, inducted for Voyage #145 from Twin Creek Preserve in Sharonville to Koenig Park in Reading on May 28, 2016
334. Travis Goodman, former water quality director for Hamilton County General Health District
335. Isaac Gornik, paddled the pond at Liberty Reserves Park on July 21, 2016
336. Joseph Gornik, paddled the pond at Liberty Reserves Park on July 21, 2016
337. Stephanie Gornik, paddled the pond at Liberty Reserves Park on July 21, 2016
338. Michele Gottschlich, Ph.D., coordinator for Connecting Active Communities Coalition (CACC)
339. Nicole Gourley, University of Cincinnati student
340. Hans Gucker, paddled the Mill Creek in June 2015 on an outing for Ohio EPA, ODOT and ODNR
341. Jesse Graf, project engineer for PSARA Technologies of Blue Ash
342. Catherine Graff, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
343. Caitlin Graham, press assistant for Congressman Steve Chabot
344. McKenna Graham, Xavier University student who paddled 3¼ miles through strong headwinds from Caldwell Park to Salway Park on April 2, 2016
345. Darren Grant, University of Cincinnati student
346. Phil Gray, engineer for XCG Consultants, Inc.
347. Lynette Greber, performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe in the Hartwell/Carthage area with 15 other volunteers from Kao Corporation
348. Nathan Green, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
349. Wendy Green, intern for Cincinnati Parks
350. Jennifer Greenup, administrative assistant, Mill Creek Watershed Council of Communities
351. Mackenzie Greisser, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
352. Ian Grindley, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in June 2015
353. Jenni Griswold, a Cincinnati resident who visited the mouth of the Mill Creek on August 6, 2016, during a Paddlefest side trip
354. Holly Gruber, performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe in the Hartwell/Carthage area with 15 other volunteers from Kao Corporation
355. Douglas Gruver, Fairfield Township resident with horses along the upper Mill Creek, survived the 4th Annual Upper Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe
356. Kathryn Gruver, Doug's wife, lives off Dust Commander Drive, helped drag heavy-laden canoes on Sept. 24th, 2016, during the Upper Mill Creek Cleanup
357. Chris Guerriero, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
358. Kara Guisinger, survived the 4th Annual Upper Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe, which featured 14 heavy-laden canoes and shallow waters on Sept. 24th, 2016
359. Nicky Haar, employee of Cincinnati Recreation Commission and volunteer for Northside Greenspace
360. Julie Haidle, employee of Ohio River Foundation and student at Cincinnati State
361. Luke Haidle, student at Cincinnati State Technical & Community College
362. Cathy Hale, Northsider, paddled from Evendale to Reading on Sept. 27, 2015 during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration
363. Chris Hall, engineer, Cincinnati Department of Water, Sewers and Stormwater Management
364. Jay Hamilton, traffic studies engineer for Ohio Department of Transportation, District 8

365. Tim Hammann, senior plant operator for Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
366. Greg Hammons, employee of the General Mill cereal factory along the Mill Creek in Sharonville
367. Christine Hancock, citizen and wife of Gary Hancock
368. Megan Hanes, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
369. Jack Haney, Wyoming resident
370. M.K. Haney, Wyoming resident who is married to Jack Haney
371. Gary Hancock, product safety coordinator for Cognis Corp. and high school pal of Commodore Koehler
372. Jim Hansel, director of horticulture at Civic Garden Center of Greater Cincinnati
373. George Hardebeck, naturalist at LaBoiteaux Woods for Cincinnati Parks
374. Hannah Harp, Miami University student of environmental journalism
375. William Harr, U.C. student who paddled from Twin Creek Preserve in Sharonville to Reading on Sept. 5, 2015
376. Lorna Harrell, consultant for environmental education, public involvement and related issues
377. Katherine Harris, friend of Dick Moser
378. Stan Harris, engineer for FMSM Engineers
379. James Harrison, cameraman for Channel 12 News
380. Kelly Hart, U.C. environmental science student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
381. Catherine Hartman, member of Evendale Village Council
382. Glen Hartung, photographer for The Cincinnati Enquirer
383. Lindsey Hassenauer, wastewater treatment professional for Hazen & Sawyer, at 22nd Annual Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe
384. Steve Hasson, former administrator of the Mill Creek Watershed Council
385. Kihm Hazletl, citizen who took part in Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration in September 2013
386. Katherine Healy, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
387. Stan Hedeem, biology professor at Xavier University and author of a book on the Mill Creek
388. John Heilman, technical services coordinator for OKI Regional Council of Governments
389. Terri Heist, consultant for Environment & Archaeology, LLC
390. Gary Heitkamp, professional engineer with Kleingers & Associates
391. Robert Helton, freelance commercial diver and Navy veteran
392. John Herchl, engineering consultant for CDM Smith
393. Cecilia Hennessy, biology student at the University of Cincinnati
394. Billie Herman, volunteer willow planter on April Fool's Day, 2006
395. Andrew Hermann, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in June 2015
396. Chris Herrmann, participated in the 100th voyage on Sunday, May 4, 2014
397. Michael Hess, Xavier University student who paddled 3¼ miles through strong headwinds from Caldwell Park to Salway Park on April 2, 2016
398. Allison Hessling, marketing specialist for PSARA Technologies of Blue Ash
399. Judy Hessling, project engineer for PSARA Technologies of Blue Ash
400. Taylor Hickey, paddled a lower Mill Creek roundtrip on July 13, 2016, with Dr. Michael C. Miller's summer class in aquatic ecology
401. Anastaza Hicks, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
402. Rachel High, teenage daughter of Warren C. High
403. Warren C. High, principal and stream restoration designer for MACTEC Engineering & Consulting

404. Susan Hilgendorf, avid canoeist, environmentalist, botanist and retired English professor
405. Curtis Hill, "vegcyclist," paddled from Evendale to Reading on Sept. 27, 2015 during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration
406. Elizabeth Himburg, University of Cincinnati student
407. Gene Hoard, civil engineer for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers
408. Eben Hobbins, Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Commission (ORSANCO)
409. Ron Hoefler, bridge specialist for Ohio Department of Transportation, District 8
410. Ryan Hogan, inducted for Voyage #145 from Twin Creek Preserve in Sharonville to Koenig Park in Reading on May 28, 2016
411. Mark Holder, a welder who paddled 3¾ miles of the lower Mill Creek with 27 other people on Saturday, October 22, 2016, in good weather
412. Libby Holmes, friend of Ryan Snyder, clinical psychology counselor
413. Casey Honan, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
414. Quinton Hooks, a U.S. military veteran who visited the lower Mill Creek on August 6th, 2016, as an optional Paddlefest side trip from the Ohio River
415. Susan Horne, "Suzi Cincinnati," public health nurse for Cincinnati Health Department, first paddled on the record-setting October 25th, 2015, float with 42 others
416. Linda Horner, University of Cincinnati student
417. Elizabeth Horton, paddled from Evendale to Reading on Sept. 27, 2015 during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration
418. Stephanie Howard, paddled a lower Mill Creek roundtrip on July 13, 2016, with Dr. Michael C. Miller's summer class in aquatic ecology
419. Dick Huber, a retiree who is #270 on the alphabetical list, but wants the distinction of being #666 to join
420. Christine "Red Hair" Hudec, Procter & Gamble employee who volunteered for the 22nd Annual Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe
421. Douglas M. Hull, corporate sponsorship recruiter for the Mill Creek Watershed Council of Communities
422. Terry Hull, environmental local liaison for Puget Sound Water Quality Action Team
423. John Hunter, board member for Mill Creek Restoration Project and Mill Creek Watershed Council
424. Dan Hurley, host of Newsmakers on Channel 12 television and director of Leadership Cincinnati
425. Karen Hurley, wife of Dan Hurley
426. Jennifer Hutchinson, University of Cincinnati student of environmental journalism
427. Marie Huth, employee of Kao USA Inc., performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe
428. Mike Huxsoll, project manager for Springdale's Department of Public Works
429. HyungJoon Im, University of Cincinnati student
430. Emily Imhoff, Thomas More College and Green Umbrella, paddled from Reading to Carthage on June 25, 2016
431. Trina Ingole, laboratory assistant for Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
432. Gayle Ingram, visited the mouth of the Mill Creek on August 6, 2016, during a Paddlefest side trip
433. Johnna Jackson, volunteer, Pick Up America
434. Joshua Jackson, environmental specialist for Ohio EPA's Southwest Dist. Office, Div. of Surface Water
435. Kristina Jackson, paddled a lower Mill Creek roundtrip on July 13, 2016, with Dr. Michael C. Miller's summer class in aquatic ecology
436. Nicholas Jacobs, site risk manager for the Procter & Gamble Chemicals Plant
437. Rich Jaffe, reporter for Channel 12 News
438. Bob Jansen, chief engineer of Millcreek Valley Conservancy District
439. Greg Jaspers, senior environmental engineer for General Electric Aircraft Engines
440. Anna Johanson, leader of Environmental Field Program at Antioch College
441. Dan Johns, wastewater engineer for Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
442. Becky Johnson, 75-year-old grandmother and native plant advocate

443. Blain Johnson, 16-year-old son of Brad Johnson
444. Brad Johnson, a self-made “dumpster juice expert” as water quality supervisor for Hamilton County Public Health, paddled the lower Mill Creek in October 2016
445. Chris Johnson, employee of Kao USA Inc., performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe on Sept. 12, 2014
446. Jessica Johnson, paddled a lower Mill Creek roundtrip on July 13, 2016, with Dr. Michael C. Miller’s summer class in aquatic ecology
447. Rich Johnson, citizen who took part in Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration in September 2013
448. Taylor Johnson, Ohio State University, paddled the Mill Creek from Reading to Carthage on June 25, 2016
449. Tammy Newcomer-Johnson, first paddled the Mill Creek on September 18th, 2016, on the ReCreation Celebration trip from Evendale to Reading
450. John Johnston, reporter for Enquirer Media
451. Aaron Jones, inducted for Voyage #145 from Twin Creek Preserve in Sharonville to Koenig Park in Reading on May 28, 2016
452. Ben Jones, environmental studies student at the University of Cincinnati
453. Camille Jones, assistant health commissioner for Cincinnati Health Department, paddled on July 24, 2015
454. Larry Jones, Reading citizen who enjoys taking photographs of Mill Creek
455. Deborah Jordan, member of Imago
456. Ross Jordan, a Cleveland native who attends University of Cincinnati
457. Ben Judge, citizen who took part in Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration in September 2013
458. Maher Kaddoura, paddled from Evendale to Reading on Sept. 27, 2015 during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration
459. Sarah Kallio, ecological engineer for MACTEC Engineering & Consulting
460. Alice Kalota, first paddled the Mill Creek during Paddlefest 2016, then returned on August 27, 2016, to paddle from Caldwell Playground to Salway Park
461. Carl Kalota, Alice’s husband, paddled the Mill Creek in Paddlefest 2016, then returned August 27, 2016, to paddle from Caldwell Playground to Salway Park
462. Bob Kanzinger, biologist for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Louisville District
463. Jim Karle, wastewater engineer for Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
464. Lara Kanarery, one of 15 crewmates who joined during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration of 2014
465. Kristi Karaus, naturalist for Cincinnati Parks
466. Patrick Karney, director of Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
467. Ben Kaufman, reporter for The Cincinnati Enquirer
468. Maciek “Monster” Kawakowski, Procter & Gamble employee who volunteered for the 22nd Annual Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe
469. Tara Keesling, operations manager for Mill Creek Watershed Council, hungry for food and adventure
470. Janet Keller, land-use planner for Ohio-Kentucky-Indiana Regional Council of Governments
471. David Kern, Liberty Township Trustee
472. Ed Kesterman, engineering supervisor for Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
473. Yekatema Kherca, one of 15 crewmates who joined during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration of 2014
474. Samiah Khan, General Mills employee who volunteered for a stream cleanup on June 19, 2014
475. Watts Kietrich, University of Cincinnati student
476. Marc Kirby, interested citizen, paddled on July 24, 2015, from Arlington Heights to Carthage
477. Patty Kirby, wife of Marc Kirby, also experienced West Fork Mill Creek and Congress Run on July 24, 2015
478. Sean Kirby, “Rookie,” son of Marc and Patty Kirby, became the Kirbys’ third Crewmate during the record-setting October 25th, 2015, float with 42 other people
479. Melinda Kirk, no relation to Captain James Tiberius Kirk
480. Jim Kleingers, professional engineer with Kleingers & Associates
481. Dan Klepal, environmental reporter for The Cincinnati Enquirer

482. Mitch Kleimeyer, environmental science student at U.C., paddled the lower Mill Creek on Sept. 2, 2015
483. Tommy Klinedinst, grandson of David Rosenkrans, visited the mouth of the Mill Creek on August 6, 2016, during a Paddlefest side trip
484. Tim Kling, kayaked on the lower Mill Creek during a Paddlefest side trip on August 6, 2016
485. Kari Klug, one of 15 crewmates who joined during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration of 2014
486. Sarah Knight, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
487. Nathan Knipper, Leadership Cincinnati classmate with Jen Eismeier; heavy lifter for the Upper Mill Creek Cleanup on Oct. 3, 2015
488. Lauren Knodle, one of 15 crewmates who joined during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration of 2014
489. John Knowles, University of Cincinnati student of environmental journalism
490. Richard "Chip" Knudsen, paddled a lower Mill Creek roundtrip on July 13, 2016, with Dr. Michael C. Miller's summer class in aquatic ecology
491. Lisa Knutson, Chief Administrative Officer of The E. W. Scripps Company, outdoor enthusiast who paddled with her husband, Steve, on October 25th, 2015
492. Steve Knutson, paddled with his wife, Lisa, on the record-setting October 25th, 2015, float from Mitchell Avenue to the Ohio River with 43 people in total
493. Adam Koehler, copywriter, son of Commodore Koehler, tallest crewmate at 6-foot-7
494. Ben Koehler, junior high student, nephew of Commodore Koehler, son of Glen
495. Bruce Koehler, environmental planner for Ohio-Kentucky-Indiana Regional Council of Governments
496. Ellen Koehler, private school teacher fluent in Spanish; daughter-in-law of Commodore Koehler
497. Glen Koehler, entomologist, University of Maine, Cooperative Extension Service
498. Karl Koehler, high school student, nephew of Commodore Koehler, son of Glen
499. Lee Koehler, retired biology and anatomy teacher at North College Hill High School
500. Susie Koehler, understanding wife of Commodore Koehler; canoed on Winton Lake in the Mill Creek Mud Turtle on October 10, 2016, with the Commodore
501. Gerald Koehne, West Chester resident active with the West Chester Historical Society
502. Johanna Kohout, student of Environmental Field Program at Antioch College
503. Mike Kokenge, bridge specialist for Ohio Department of Transportation, District 8
504. Adam Konopka, a Xavier University philosophy professor who first paddled the Mill Creek in April 2015 and keeps coming back for more
505. Junior Konopka, 7-year-old son of Adam, loves catching and releasing big Mill Creek carp, first paddled on Sunday, September 18th, 2016
506. Mike Kop, member of Sierra Club's Miami Group
507. Brett Kordenbrock, graduate student doing a master's thesis on the Mill Creek
508. Jeff Korpik, graduate student of biology at the University of Cincinnati
509. Mike Kosla, Xavier University student who paddled 3¼ miles through strong headwinds from Caldwell Park to Salway Park on April 2, 2016
510. Sarah Kramer, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in June 2015
511. Oliver Kroner, professional for Cincinnati Office of Environmental Sustainability, paddled Voyage #145 from Sharonville to Reading
512. Allen Kroth, chief of personnel Contech (Fortune 500 company)
513. Nick Kowalski, intern for Ohio River Foundation
514. Gary Kurtz, landscape architect who joined during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration of 2014
515. Sandee Kurtz, wife of Gary, joined during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration of 2014
516. Brian Kwiatkowski, project scientist for MACTEC Engineering & Consulting (now at Apex Companies, LLC)
517. Kelly Kwiatkowski, wife of Brian Kwiatkowski, project manager for Forest Pharmaceuticals
518. Kim Lahman, public relations specialist for ETC (Environmental Technologies & Communications)
519. Robert Lakeberg, water quality planner, OKI Regional Council of Governments
520. Gary Landers, head of photography, The Cincinnati Enquirer

521. Al Landis, comptroller for Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
522. Steve Lane, senior environmental planner for Parsons Brinckerhoff, paddled from Sharonville to Reading on May 17, 2015
523. Laura Lang, performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe in the Hartwell/Carthage area with 15 other volunteers from Kao Corporation
524. Lisa Lange, environmental consultant and former director of brownfields redevelopment
525. Peter Lask, canoe poling enthusiast who co-owns an outdoors adventure supplies store in Oxford, Ohio
526. Tamar Lask, canoe poling enthusiast who co-owns an outdoors adventure supplies store in Oxford, Ohio
527. Jim Lasley, a tall, distinguished U.S. EPA retiree who helped clean up the upper Mill Creek on his first voyage
528. Andy Latham, son of Matt Latham, paddled the pond at Liberty Reserves Park on July 21, 2016
529. Jude Latham, son of Matt Latham, paddled the pond at Liberty Reserves Park on July 21, 2016
530. Matt Latham, a licensed landscape architect who is project manager for the Mill Creek Watershed Council
531. Lori Leary, Springfield Township resident
532. Cynthia Lear, accomplished kayaker and sister of Wyoming Public Works Director Terry Vanderman
533. Allison Leavitt, consultant in landscape architecture for Spring Grove Cemetery
534. Chris Leesburg, University of Cincinnati student in Mike Miller's urban ecology class
535. Adam Lehmann, West Chester Township native; became Hamilton County SWCD's stream specialist in mid-2016; found a water-logged car seat for cleanup
536. Lisa Leming, Procter & Gamble employee who volunteered for the Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe in Reading/Lockland on April 17, 2015
537. Bill Lennard, self-described "nature lover," advising the Watershed Council on an organizational strategic plan for the Executive Service Corps of Cincinnati
538. Mary Lennard, self-described "teacher and learner", wife of Bill Lennard, paddled the lower Mill Creek on October 22, 2016
539. Billy Lentz, 10-year-old son of Bob Lentz, paddled from Evendale to Reading during the 2015 Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration
540. Bob Lentz, coordinator of the Butler County Storm Water District, paddled during the 2015 Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration
541. David Lentz, paddled the lower Mill Creek in July 2015 for a summer teachers' course
542. Jim Lewis, resident of South Fairmount neighborhood
543. Kevin Ley, University of Cincinnati student
544. Chella Liebenthal, Miami University student of environmental journalism
545. Bill Liebschutz, freelance photographer for The Cincinnati Post
546. Rachael Lierher, student of Environmental Field Program at Antioch College
547. Steve Lilly, organizer for Buckeye United Fly Fishers and Mill Creek Wilderness Society
548. Hagit Limor, reporter for Channel 9 News
549. Johnny Lin, one of 15 crewmates who joined during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration of 2014
550. Joyce Lin, one of 15 crewmates who joined during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration of 2014
551. Kathryn Lin, one of 15 crewmates who joined during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration of 2014
552. Michael Lin, one of 15 crewmates who joined during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration of 2014
553. Greg Lind, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
554. Don Lindeman, Reading City Councilman At Large
555. Todd Lindgren, communications manager for Congressman Steve Chabot
556. Ken Lindner, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in June 2015
557. Kevin Link, Enerfab employee who helped clean up Twin Creek Preserve by canoe on May 7, 2016
558. Lisa Link, graphic designer and medical illustrator who is active with Rivers Unlimited and Great Miami monitoring
559. Klara Lisy, Xavier University student who paddled 3¼ miles through strong headwinds from Caldwell Park to Salway Park on April 2, 2016

560. Cameron Lodor, son of MaryLynn Lodor who joined her on the record-setting October 25th, 2015, float with 42 other people
561. MaryLynn Lodor, environmental division head for Butler County Department of Environmental Services
562. Shawn Loew, college student of environmental engineering and best friend of Adam Koehler
563. Doug Lohmeier, mayor of Evendale
564. Virgil Lovitt, mayor of Sharonville
565. Hannah Lubbers, graduate student of Professor Mike Miller at University of Cincinnati
566. Donna Luggen, Paddlefest volunteer who explored the mouth of the Mill Creek on July 21, 2016, as a preview for the big show on August 6, 2016
567. John Lugineill, engineer for Cincinnati Division of Engineering
568. Charlie Luken, mayor of Cincinnati (Democrat)
569. Bob Luther, insurance agent and broker for AFLAC and a leading member of Evendale Chamber of Commerce
570. Deb Luther, wife of Bob Luther, paddled the Mill Creek on May 17, 2015, from Sharonville to Reading
571. Anne Lyon, director of water quality projects for Greenacres Foundation
572. Xiayang Ma, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
573. Bob Mackey, member of Buckeye United Fly Fishers
574. Dave MacMannis, engineer, husband of Katie, got his first exposure on October 22, 2016, when he paddled the lower Mill Creek with his wife
575. Katie MacMannis, stream restoration engineer, first experienced the Mill Creek in May 2015, when she paddled from Sharonville to Reading
576. Tara Maddock, former executive director for Mill Creek Watershed Council of Communities
577. Kyle J. Madon, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
578. Tommy Maiden, a U.S. military veteran who visited the lower Mill Creek on August 6th, 2016, as an optional Paddlefest side trip from the Ohio River
579. Sue Magness, environmental educator for Cincinnati's Office of Environmental Quality, joined after 20 years of curiosity
580. John Mangan, retired software developer who is active with Green Umbrella
581. Gwen Marshall, co-chair of Hamilton Green Party and wildlife habitat activist
582. John Martens, retired jet engineer, General Electric Aircraft Engines
583. Bill Martin, Sharonville Planning Commission
584. Diana Martin, planning administrator, Ohio Department of Transportation, District 8
585. Sam Marty, Wyoming High School student of an advanced placement science class; volunteered for Upper Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe in 2015
586. Sarah Martynowski, University of Cincinnati student
587. Robert E. Mason, environmental specialist for Hamilton County Park District
588. Emily Masi, paddled the Mill Creek from Reading to Carthage on June 25th, 2016
589. Kati Massey, University of Cincinnati student
590. Peter Matrisciano, medical student at University of Cincinnati
591. Dr. Steve Matter, professor of population ecology at University of Cincinnati
592. Linda Matthews, inducted for Voyage #145 from Twin Creek Preserve in Sharonville to Koenig Park in Reading on May 28, 2016
593. Dr. Eric Maurer, Director of University of Cincinnati's Center of Environmental Studies
594. Jillian Maxey, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
595. Vickie Mays, employee of Kao USA Inc., performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe on September 12, 2014, and August 26, 2016
596. Thomas Mazza, paddled the Mill Creek in June 2015 on an outing for Ohio EPA, ODOT and ODNR
597. Msendoo Mbachlin, Xavier University student who paddled 3¼ miles through strong headwinds from Caldwell Park to Salway Park on April 2, 2016
598. Jay McCarthy, consultant and experienced canoeist

599. Zac McClatchey, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
600. Lavidia McGee, administrator for Procter & Gamble
601. Marielle McIntosh, Xavier University student who paddled 3¼ miles through strong headwinds from Caldwell Park to Salway Park on April 2, 2016
602. Mollie McIntosh, Xavier University biology professor who paddled the lower Mill Creek while 7½-months pregnant
603. Steve McKinley, water resources program manager for FMSM Engineers
604. Barb McManus, retired lawyer married to Hamilton County Judge Jack McManus
605. Jack McManus, judge, Hamilton County
606. Joseph McMillian, Northside resident and University of Cincinnati student
607. Anthony McMurray, 19-year-old grandson of Commodore Koehler; his first trip on the Mill Creek was a moonlight float through Ivorydale
608. Matt McMurray, 44-year-old stepson of Commodore Koehler; steered a canoe on the November 25, 2015, moonlight float through Ivorydale
609. Melanie McNulty, recreation director for Springfield Township
610. Jody McOsker, teacher at Withrow High School, paddled the lower Mill Creek in July 2015 for a summer teachers' course
611. Allen McPherson, University of Cincinnati student
612. Skip Meinhardt, botanist with Northside Greenspace and Our Plants Are Native
613. Nestor Melynk, employee of Gold Medal Co. in Evendale
614. Sophia Melynk, employee of Gold Medal Co. in Evendale
615. John Meninger, engineer in training with Stantec environmental engineering consultant firm
616. Frances Menone, staff member with the Great Miami Rowing Center in Hamilton
617. Mark Mersmann, senior hydrogeologist for Hull & Associates, Inc.
618. Jerry Messer, explored about a mile of the lower Mill Creek on August 6, 2016, as a Paddlefest safety paddler who wants to see more
619. William Messer, operatic singer who joined during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration of 2014
620. Owen Messerly, paddled the Mill Creek during the Lunar Eclipse outing in April 2015
621. Lincoln Messerly, paddled the Mill Creek during the Lunar Eclipse outing in April 2015
622. Marcie Metcalfe, paddled a lower Mill Creek roundtrip on July 13, 2016, with Dr. Michael C. Miller's summer class in aquatic ecology
623. Andy Meyer, land use planner at OKI Regional Council of Governments, paddled the pond at Liberty Reserves Park on July 21, 2016
624. Dave Meyer, director of utility oversight and SSO 700 project for Hamilton County
625. Nick Meyer, 5-year-old son of Andy Meyer, whom he called "Captain Daddy" while paddling a pond with him at Liberty Reserves Park
626. Sandy Meyer, wife of Dave Meyer
627. Kathleen Michel, wife of Patrick, joined during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration of 2014
628. Dr. Patrick Michel, dentist in Reading, joined during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration of 2014
629. April Milarcik, member of Rivers Unlimited and student at University of Cincinnati
630. Bill Miller, regional planning manager for Ohio-Kentucky-Indiana Regional Council of Governments
631. Brad Miller, "The Redhead's Partner," paddled with Holly Christmann on the record-setting October 25th, 2015, float with 42 other people
632. Jon Miller, University of Cincinnati student in Mike Miller's urban ecology class
633. Mike Miller, professor of aquatic ecology at the University of Cincinnati
634. Travis Miller, Regional Planning Manager, OKI Regional Council of Governments
635. Susan Miller-Stigler, citizen who took part in Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration in September 2013
636. Tracy Minger, University of Cincinnati student in Mike Miller's urban ecology class

637. Mark Mitchell, Ph.D. candidate in biological sciences at U.C., paddled the lower Mill Creek in July 2015 and 2016 for a summer ecology class
638. Paul Mitchell, Cincinnati Parks
639. Kevin Miyazaki, photographer for Cincinnati Magazine
640. Kim Mlinek, senior producer/director for CET public television station in Cincinnati
641. Alex Mol, performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe in the Hartwell/Carthage area with 15 other volunteers from Kao Corporation
642. Bernie Moller, outdoorsman and research assistant for U.C.'s Department of Biology
643. Beth Molinario, wife of Larry Falkin, director of Cincinnati's Office of Environmental Quality
644. Dan Monk, staff writer for the Cincinnati Business Courier
645. Chris Monzel, Hamilton County Commissioner, paddled the lower Mill Creek on October 25, 2014
646. Amanda Morgan, University of Cincinnati student of environmental journalism
647. Charles D. Morgan, bridge specialist for Ohio Department of Transportation, District 8
648. Al Morris, economic development coordinator for City of Sharonville
649. Georgia Moore, participated in 100th voyage from Northside to Ohio River on Sunday, May 4, 2014
650. Jim Moore, participated in 100th voyage from Northside to Ohio River on Sunday, May 4, 2014
651. Lew Moores, reporter for The Cincinnati Enquirer
652. Dick Moser, citizen who took part in Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration in September 2013
653. Courtney Motley, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
654. Nick Motz, real estate agent, probably the only crewmate to start a home sale by phone while paddling the Mill Creek
655. Andrew Muldering, one of 15 crewmates who joined during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration of 2014
656. Tina Munafo, another citizen paddler
657. John Munro, stream and ecological restorationist who publishes, teaches and develops guidelines
658. Jack Mouch, wears a cowboy hat and paddles fast
659. Dan Mouch, son of Jack Mouch
660. Jim Moyer, project manager for Mill Creek Watershed Council who occasionally volunteers for Engineers Without Borders
661. Maureen Mullinax, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in June 2015
662. Linda Murphy, manager of Mill Creek Flood Damage Reduction Project for Army Corps of Engineers
663. Melissa Musinski, crew leader of the General Mill cereal factory along the Mill Creek in Sharonville
664. Laura Murphy, young professional who paddled the lower Mill Creek on October 25, 2014
665. Theresa Myers, Formica associate of "Captain Ferg," survived 4th Annual Upper Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe on Saturday, September 24th, 2016
666. Ted Nagel, flour miller, friend of Greg Bechtel since they were Cub Scouts, paddled on May 17, 2015
667. Karen Nagel, member of Sierra Club's Miami Group
668. Firdaws Nashid, Xavier University student who paddled 3¼ miles through strong headwinds from Caldwell Park to Salway Park on April 2, 2016
669. Teri Nau, community relations director for Talbert House, first paddled on the record-setting October 25th, 2015, float with 42 other people
670. Chuck Neack, visited the mouth of the Mill Creek on August 6, 2016, during a Paddlefest side trip
671. Jesse Neack, visited the mouth of the Mill Creek on August 6, 2016, during a Paddlefest side trip
672. John Neack, visited the mouth of the Mill Creek on August 6, 2016, during a Paddlefest side trip
673. Madisa Neary, citizen who took part in Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration in September 2013
674. Camille Neitzel, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
675. John Nelson, public relations specialist, Hamilton County Soil & Water Conservation District, worked a Mill Creek cleanup behind General Mills

676. Cris Nesbitt, paddled the Mill Creek from Reading to Elmwood Place in June 2014
677. Jesse Nesbitt, paddled the Mill Creek from Reading to Elmwood Place in June 2014
678. George Neumann, University of Cincinnati student from Wyoming
679. Joshua Newkold, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
680. Bradley Neyer, first paddled the Mill Creek from Sharonville to Reading on May 17, 2015
681. Gerry Newell, biologist and regulatory specialist for U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Louisville District
682. Jordyn Ng, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
683. Leslie Niehaus, employee of Kao USA Inc., performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe on Sept. 12, 2014
684. Dean Niemeyer, planner for Hamilton County Planning & Development and Watershed Council trustee
685. Jean Nightingale, member of Sierra Club and Imago, the urban eco-village in Price Hill
686. Mundayi Nlandu, Xavier University student who paddled 3¼ miles through strong headwinds from Caldwell Park to Salway Park on April 2, 2016
687. William O'Donnell, "Pathfinder," first paddled on the record-setting October 25th, 2015, float from Mitchell Avenue to the Ohio River with 42 other people
688. Tom Ogden, member of Sierra Club's Miami Group
689. Dave Okerbloom, environmental specialist for Ohio EPA's Southwest District Office
690. Andy Olding, neighbor of Warren High and former chemical worker with Bernie Moller
691. A.J. Olding, son of Andy Olding
692. Joe Olding, son of Andy Olding
693. Mark Olding, another one of the Mill-Creek-loving Olding clan
694. Pat Olding, landscape architect who retired to become an artist
695. Marco "Dirty Hippy" Olivas, Procter & Gamble employee who volunteered for the 22nd Annual Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe
696. Wolf Olson, chief executive officer of Freelance Commercial Diving, Inc., and Navy veteran
697. Tim O'Rourke, Xavier University student who paddled 3¼ miles through strong headwinds from Caldwell Park to Salway Park on April 2, 2016
698. Lori Orcena, employee of the General Mill cereal factory along the Mill Creek in Sharonville
699. Cecil Osborn, administrator of Springdale and treasurer of Mill Creek Watershed Council
700. Richard Osgood, Sharonville director of planning, building & zoning; elected MCWCC chair in 2014
701. AJ Osier, son of Mill Creek Watershed Council Executive Director Jen Eismeier, paddled the pond at Liberty Reserves Park on July 21, 2016
702. Erika Osterholzer, pre-medical student at University of Cincinnati
703. Phillip Ott, paddled 3¾ miles along the lower Mill Creek on Saturday, October 22, 2016, seeing Western Hills Viaduct and Mill Creek Barrier Dam
704. Steve Page, chemist for Procter & Gamble
705. Ken Palisin, kayaker who paddled 1.7 miles of the lower Mill Creek from the Ohio River to Western Hills Viaduct on Saturday, October 1, 2016
706. Anthony Pankala, paddled the Mill Creek in June 2015 on an outing for Ohio EPA, ODOT and ODNR
707. Aaron Parker, teacher, Lockland Middle School
708. Joshua Parker, 10-year-old son of Aaron Parker, Wyoming Middle School
709. Liberty Partridge, outdoor enthusiast and stream cleanup ramrod
710. Deepa Patel, performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe in the Hartwell/Carthage area with 15 other volunteers from Kao Corporation
711. Derric Pennington, Miami University graduate student and West Fork Mill Creek researcher
712. Megan Pettit, girlfriend of Anthony McMurray, who is Commodore Koehler's grandson; paddled under moonlight through Ivorydale
713. Laura Pfeffer, University of Cincinnati student in Mike Miller's urban ecology class
714. Jim Pfennig, member of Reading City Council (Democrat)

715. Charlie Pfitsor, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
716. Donni Phillips, Xavier University student who paddled 3¼ miles through strong headwinds from Caldwell Park to Salway Park on April 2, 2016
717. Jenna Phillips, University of Cincinnati student
718. Marianne Piekutowski, pretreatment coordinator for Ohio EPA's Southwest District Office
719. Mark Piepmeier, Sharonville auditor
720. Amber Pleasant, leader of Environmental Field Program at Antioch College
721. Mark Plungis, a tall paddler with a wet name who managed to stay dry for the 20th Annual Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe
722. Rev. John Pohlman, minister for Tylersville Road Christian Church — Disciples of Christ, Mason
723. Joe Pohlmann, U.S. military veteran who visited the lower Mill Creek on the morning of August 6th, 2016, as an optional Paddlefest side trip from the Ohio River
724. Mike Pope, construction observer and stream outlet inspector for CDS Associates, Inc.
725. Andrew Porter, University of Cincinnati student
726. Rob Portman, congressman (Republican)
727. Todd Portune, Hamilton County Commissioner (Democrat); in 1995 as a Cincinnati City Councilman, Todd was the first elected official to become a Crewmate
728. Taneli Potticary, staff member for Ohio Citizen Action
729. Sandy Price, a Dayton, Ohio, resident who visited the mouth of the Mill Creek on August 6, 2016, during a Paddlefest side trip
730. Tim Pringle, wastewater engineer for Hazen & Sawyer
731. Mike Proffitt, paddled the Mill Creek in June 2015 on an outing for Ohio EPA, ODOT and ODNR
732. Mark Pruden, owner of a therapeutic counseling service
733. Larry Pyle, project architect and avid supporter of rowing crews
734. Hannah Quinlan, U.C. environmental science student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
735. Tom Quinn, engineer for Hydromechanics Systems Ltd.
736. Kerry Rabe, Sharonville City Council, Ward 3
737. Annie Rahall, administrative assistant for the Mill Creek Watershed Council
738. Derrick Ramsey, naturalist for Cincinnati Park Board
739. Melina Rankin, freelance photographer for The Cincinnati Enquirer
740. Gavin Raymer, 10-year-old student at Wyoming Middle School, friend of Joshua Parker
741. Jim Raussen, state representative for the district covering much of the Mill Creek Valley
742. Rich Reaves, wetlands ecologist, formerly at BHE Environmental, Inc.
743. Patrick Reddy, former tall building iron worker who has been a Cincinnati Enquirer photographer for 23 years; canoed lower Mill Creek on July 29, 2016
744. Patrick Reed, co-op student working at General Electric Aircraft Engines
745. Kelsey Reese, University of Cincinnati, paddled the Mill Creek from Reading to Carthage on June 25th, 2016
746. Darcy Regel, wastewater engineer for Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
747. Ginny Reifenberger, wife of Mike Reifenberger
748. Mike Reifenberger, retired construction foreman who supervised Mill Creek channelization
749. Leiland Reilich, bricklayer and aspiring restoration ecologist just out of college
750. Gary Reisenberg, gardening enthusiast who lives in Springdale
751. Alex Reitz, Xavier University student who paddled 3¼ miles through strong headwinds from Caldwell Park to Salway Park on April 2, 2016
752. Aaron Reizner, husband of Julie Reizner, participated in the 100th voyage on May 4, 2014
753. Julie Reizner, associate professor of geology at Northern Kentucky University, seeks consulting work

754. Jessica Rekes, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
755. Robert D. Repasky, project manager for The Payne Firm, Inc.
756. Allan Rettberg, Reading High School graduate active with the Reading Historical Society
757. Andrew Reynolds, consultant contracted by City of Cincinnati to work with MSD
758. Kevin Reynolds, Greater Cincinnati Water Works chemist who kayaked the lower Mill Creek run on September 25th, 2016, after the Great Ohio River Swim
759. Brewster Rhoads, political and tax levy campaign consultant
760. Kristopher Richmond, paddled a lower Mill Creek roundtrip on July 13, 2016, with Dr. Michael C. Miller's summer class in aquatic ecology
761. Teresa Richter, internal auditor for Cincinnati Finance Department
762. Jonathan Ricketts, paddled the Mill Creek in June 2015 on an outing for Ohio EPA, ODOT and ODNR
763. Patrick Rieger, intern for Ohio-Kentucky-Indiana Regional Council of Governments
764. Tim Riordan, former assistant city manager for the City of Cincinnati, paddled 3¾ miles along the lower Mill Creek on Saturday, October 22, 2016
765. Anji "Butterfly Hat" Roberts, Procter & Gamble employee who volunteered for the 22nd Annual Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe
766. Dave Roberts, environmental health and safety manager for General Electric Aircraft Engines
767. Brian Robertson, Water Quality Intern, OKI Regional Council of Governments
768. Jerald Robertson, Conservancy District delegate and former chair of Mill Creek Watershed Council
769. Daniel Roche, helped his wife Laurie navigate the narrow, V-cut, low-flow channel through Ivorydale on November 25, 2015; friendly shuttle driver
770. Laurie Roche, adventurous former reporter for The Cincinnati Post; first paddled the Mill Creek on Thanksgiving Eve 2015 under the light of a full moon
771. Steven Rodenberg, Northside handyman who admits to being nuts about the Mill Creek
772. Mary Roderi, graduate student at U.C.'s Department of Arts, Architecture and Planning
773. Davey Rogner, campaign coordinator, Pick Up America
774. Brad Rolfes, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
775. Joe Rosemeyer, web editor for WCPO, 9 On Your Side, fought his way through the trash equilibrium zone on July 31, 2015
776. Taylor Rosenhagen, University of Cincinnati student
777. David Rosenkrans, visited the mouth of the Mill Creek on August 6, 2016, during a Paddlefest side trip
778. Don Rostofer, SW Ohio river coordinator for Ohio Dept. of Natural Resources' Scenic Rivers Program
779. Tim Roth, a U.S. military veteran who visited the lower Mill Creek on the morning of August 6th, 2016, as an optional Paddlefest side trip from the Ohio River
780. Jim Rozelle, senior water resources engineer for FMSM Engineers
781. Donn Rubingh, retired protein engineer for Procter & Gamble Co.
782. Donald L. Rucknagel, MD, PhD, Cincinnati Children's Hospital and University of Cincinnati Medical Center
783. Victoria Ruedisueli, friend of Liberty Partridge and stream cleanup enthusiast
784. Reno Frank Runck III, architect, cousin of Powell Crosley, the famous Cincinnati industrialist
785. Christine Russell, paddled the Mill Creek during the Lunar Eclipse outing in April 2015
786. Gabrielle Russell, U.C. student who paddled from Twin Creek Preserve in Sharonville to Reading on Sept. 5, 2015
787. Benjamin Rutter, "Skyline Paddler," paddled from Evendale to Reading on Sept. 27, 2015 during Mill Creek Re-Creation Celebration
788. Dana Rutter, Skyline's wife, paddled from Evendale to Reading on Sept. 27, 2015 during Mill Creek Re-Creation Celebration
789. David Rutter, environmental planner at OKI Regional Council of Governments, just one of about 600 Paddlefest visitors on August 6th, 2016 (see above)
790. Craig Ruttle, staff photographer for The Cincinnati Enquirer
791. Kevin Ruzich, Procter & Gamble employee who volunteered for the Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe in Reading/Lockland on April 17, 2015
792. Tom Ryther, active environmentalist and regional representative for Biohabitats

793. Heather Sabin, young professional who paddled the lower Mill Creek on October 25, 2014
794. Brian Sabla, employee of CDS Associates
795. Shannon Sabla, wife of Brian Sabla
796. Adam Sackenheim, regulatory compliance coordinator, Butler County Water and Sewer Department
797. Mike Saffran, principal engineer for Altech Environmental Services and former Army Corps manager
798. Edwin Salazar, employee of the General Mill cereal factory along the Mill Creek in Sharonville
799. Nikhita Samala, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
800. Jay Sampson, plant manager for the General Mills cereal factory along the Mill Creek in Sharonville
801. Doug Sand, auditor of Reading
802. Alexis Santora, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
803. Chuck Sargent, citizen of Reading and marketing professional
804. Brian Sasla, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
805. Shannon Sasla, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
806. Walt Schaefer, reporter for The Cincinnati Enquirer
807. Jean Schechtman, occupational health nurse for John Morrell & Co., worked a cleanup on her maiden voyage
808. Kara Scheerhorn, upper Mill Creek watershed coordinator for the Mill Creek Watershed Council of Communities; native of Michigan
809. John Scheetz, a U.S. military veteran who visited the lower Mill Creek on the morning of August 6th, 2016, as an optional Paddlefest side trip from the Ohio River
810. Devin Schenk, ecological restorationist with Northern Kentucky University Center for Applied Ecology
811. Jim Schenk, co-founder and former executive director of Imago
812. Adam "Big Guns" Schirmer, web designer with muscular arms, lives in Delhi Township, Kara Scheerhorn's boyfriend
813. Randy Schlitz, owner of Rivertown Brewing Co., which uses drinking water from the Mill Creek aquifer
814. Ben Schlosser, employee of Kao USA Inc., performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe on Sept. 12, 2014
815. Earl Schmidt, mayor of Reading (Democrat)
816. Rosemary Kanter Schmidt, pediatrician for Children's Hospital
817. Samantha Schmidt, employee of the General Mill cereal factory along the Mill Creek in Sharonville
818. Katherine Schmitt, undergraduate student of biology at University of Cincinnati
819. Melanie Schmitt, graduate student of biology at University of Cincinnati
820. Lucy Schroder, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in June 2015
821. Joseph P. Schubauer Berigan, paddled the Mill Creek in June 2015 on an outing for Ohio EPA, ODOT and ODNR
822. Steve Schueler, sergeant with the Blue Ash Police Department
823. Glen Schulte, teacher for Cincinnati Public Schools, paddled the lower Mill Creek in July 2015 for a summer teachers' course
824. Chuck Schultz, employee of Metropolitan Sewer District and student at Cincinnati State
825. Jim Schulze, wastewater collection specialist for Metropolitan Sewer District
826. Cody Schumacher, OKI Regional Council of Governments water quality intern and Delta Airlines wing walker
827. Mike Schwartz, cameraman for CET public television station in Cincinnati
828. Richie Scott, employee of Metropolitan Sewer District and student at Cincinnati State
829. Chris Screen, University of Cincinnati student
830. Mary Scully, counselor, Opportunities for Positive Growth
831. Daniel Sedlacete, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in June 2015

832. Andy Selle, consultant with Inter Fluve, Inc.
833. Zachary Semones, paddled a lower Mill Creek roundtrip on July 13, 2016, with Dr. Michael C. Miller's summer class in aquatic ecology
834. Dan Sennett, teacher at Woodward High School, paddled the lower Mill Creek in July 2015 for a summer teachers' course
835. Danny Shah, Procter & Gamble employee who volunteered for the Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe in Reading/Lockland on April 17, 2015
836. Daniel Shanklin, a self-described "alien paddler" who visited the lower Mill Creek on August 6, 2016, during a Paddlefest side trip
837. Sally Sharrow, Imago, a sustainable living organization in Price Hill
838. John Shepard, self-described "urban adventurer," paddled 3¾ miles along the lower Mill Creek on Saturday, October 22, 2016
839. Mark Shifflett, engineer in training for XCG Consultants, Inc.
840. Karsen Shoger, summer 2014 intern for the Mill Creek Watershed Council of Communities
841. Aaron Shultz, environmental specialist for Ohio EPA's Southwest District Office, Div. of Surface Water
842. Bryan Shupe, University of Cincinnati student of environmental journalism
843. Don Shvegza, Springdale City Engineer and Director of Government Consultation for CDS Associates
844. Kaniz Siddiqui, water quality coordinator for Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
845. Manam Sidibel, student of Environmental Field Program at Antioch College
846. Wendy Siefert, friend of Yacht Club Coach Lisa Link; re-learning to play the cello
847. Maria Sikic, University of Cincinnati student
848. Reilly Simmons, Wyoming High School student of an advanced placement science class; volunteered for Upper Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe in 2015
849. Steve Simonin, employee of Kao USA Inc., performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe on Sept. 12, 2014
850. Gary R. Simmons, P.E., principal in charge of Wang Engineering, Inc.
851. Manavi Singh, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
852. Chris Skalski, water quality standards specialist at Ohio EPA's Central Office, Division of Surface Water
853. Brad Skidmore, brother of Chip Skidmore and resident of Ft. Mitchell, Ky.
854. Carsen Skidmore, son of Chip Skidmore who first got Chip interested in paddling
855. Charles "Chip" Skidmore, licensed attorney with a law practice in the City of Wyoming
856. Doug Skidmore, brother of Chip and proprietor of Skidmore Sales, a wholesale company
857. Matt Skidmore, son of Doug Skidmore
858. Gary Skitt, employee of Cincinnati Recreation Commission and member of Northside Greenspace
859. Barbara Slavinski, a brilliant redhead who paddled the lower Mill Creek on October 25, 2014
860. Sharon Smiqielski, paddled the Mill Creek in June 2015 on an outing for Ohio EPA, ODOT and ODNR
861. Bob Smith, treatment specialist for Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
862. Doug Smith, environmental planner at Ohio-Kentucky-Indiana Regional Council of Governments
863. Jenni Smith, geotechnical engineer for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Louisville District
864. John Smith, water quality sanitarian for the Hamilton County General Health District
865. Keith Smith, environmental specialist for Ohio Department of Transportation, District 8
866. Kathleen Smythe, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in June 2015
867. Dan Snead, captain with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers
868. Ryan Snyder, GIS analyst working as an intern for Cincinnati Parks and MSD
869. Warren Solar, retired inner-city schoolteacher and volunteer for Cincinnati Recreation Commission
870. Beatra Solomon, intern for Cincinnati Parks

871. Justin Solomon, performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe in the Hartwell/Carthage area with 15 other volunteers from Kao Corporation
872. Ron Sonderman, retired newspaper printer and treasurer of South Western Ohio Trails Association
873. Sue Spaid, curator of Contemporary Arts Center
874. Jeanne Speier, native plant student and member of Northside Greenspace
875. Rachel Spencer, operations analyst and “sarcastic paddling partner,” experienced the lower Mill Creek on October 22, 2016
876. Bryan Spille, employee of Kao USA Inc., performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe on Sept. 12, 2014
877. Ben Sprengard, Enerfab employee who helped clean up Twin Creek Preserve by canoe on May 7, 2016
878. Sarah Stabile, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
879. Caitlin Stanley, University of Cincinnati student
880. Matthew Staoutberg, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
881. Joshua Stark, U.C. environmental science student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
882. Cynthia Starr, feature writer for The Cincinnati Post
883. Todd “TJ” Statt, volunteered for the 22nd Annual Mill Creek Cleanup by Canoe in Reading, Lockland and Evendale
884. Andrew Stautberg, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
885. Kathy Steele, a Wyoming resident who paddled the lower Mill Creek on October 25, 2014 and the middle Mill Creek on Sept. 27, 2015
886. Michelle “Shelly” Steele, paddled a lower Mill Creek roundtrip on July 13, 2016, with Dr. Michael C. Miller’s summer class in aquatic ecology
887. Mark Stegman, self-employed internet wizard with SEO Ohio
888. Lindsey Stiffler, University of Cincinnati student
889. Ken Stigler, citizen who took part in Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration in September 2013
890. John Stillpass, a self-described “inland mariner” who paddled through duckweed on Sharon Lake to enjoy a full moon on Aug. 29, 2015
891. Merrie Stillpass, certified planner who serves on Hamilton County Regional Planning Commission
892. Rick St. John, senior engineering technician for Cincinnati Stormwater Management Utility
893. Nicholas Stock, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
894. Rachael Strock, ecological engineer for Williams Creek Consulting
895. Craig Straub, restoration ecologist for BHE Environmental, Inc.
896. Ron Straub, member of Sierra Club’s Miami Group
897. Douglas Striker, paddled from Evendale to Reading on Sept. 27, 2015 during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration
898. Tom Strohfeltdt, resident of College Hill neighborhood
899. Harry Stone, research leader, Battelle Environmental Technology Commercialization Center
900. John Stork, manager of Kenton County Conservation District, paddled the lower Mill Creek during an optional side trip from Paddlefest 2016
901. Larry Stulz, Paddlefest safety coordinator who explored the Mill Creek’s mouth on July 21, 2016, as a preview for the big show on August 6, 2016
902. Art Sturbaum, geotechnical engineer, Thelen
903. David Styer, birdwatcher, retired professor and member of Oxbow, Inc., and Friends of the Great Miami
904. Jane Sushansky, environmental science student at U.C., paddled the lower Mill Creek on Sept. 2, 2015
905. Barb Swafford, professional engineer for Brown and Crawford
906. Jean Swartley, Northside resident who paddled from Arlington Heights to Carthage on July 24, 2015
907. Mike Sweeney, former deputy director of the Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
908. Jim Taddeo, staff person for Public Allies, a local organization for Americorps, medical student
909. Kevin Talbert, former employee of International Red Cross taking an interest in local water quality

910. Jim Tarbell, member of Cincinnati City Council (Charterite)
911. Charles Tassell, first paddled the Mill Creek on May 17, 2015, going from Sharonville to Reading
912. Skip Tate, writer for Cincinnati Magazine
913. Carrie Tedeschi, University of Cincinnati student in Mike Miller's urban ecology class
914. Jessica Tedrick, employee of Kao USA Inc., performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe on Sept. 12, 2014
915. Bob Temple, member of Sierra Club's Miami Group
916. Michelle Tenant, freelance entertainer
917. Dylan Tennison, a 19-year-old friend of Diantha Decker who enjoys exploring the region
918. Reis Thebault, Miami University student of environmental journalism
919. Christine Pope Thompson, assistant to Sharonville mayor, floodplain manager, MCWCC vice chair
920. Matthew Thompson-Wilda, paddled the Mill Creek during a Xavier University outing in April 2015
921. Sara Lynne Thoresen, paddled from Evendale to Reading on Sept. 27, 2015 during the Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration
922. Todd Trabert, "Captain Red Beard," intrepid field engineer for the Wastewater Collection Division at Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
923. David Tracy, education manager for Keep Cincinnati Beautiful
924. Natasha Tramble, employee of Metropolitan Sewer District and student at Cincinnati State
925. Doug Trapp, reporter for Cincinnati CityBeat
926. Tony Tribble, freelance photographer for Enquirer Media
927. Rachel Triozzi, Xavier University student who paddled 3¼ miles through strong headwinds from Caldwell Park to Salway Park on April 2, 2016
928. Kiley Tu, daughter of Tinguyu Wu and youngest member of the Mill Creek Yacht Club at age 3
929. Tinguyu Tu, Chinese citizen who is studying geographic information systems at University of Cincinnati
930. Shawn Tubb, sustainability coordinator for University of Cincinnati
931. Natalie Tyler, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015
932. Sarah Tyrrell, Miami University geography student
933. Marty Umberg, principal engineer for Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
934. Gustavo Monje Ustares, student of Environmental Field Program at Antioch College
935. Terry Vanderman, director of the City of Wyoming's Community Development & Building Department
936. Cheryl Vandewalle, teacher at Oak Hills High School, paddled the lower Mill Creek in July 2015 for a summer teachers' course
937. Jason Van Dyke, networking administrator for PSARA Technologies of Blue Ash
938. Drew Vernon, employee of Kao USA Inc., performed Mill Creek cleanups by canoe on September 12, 2014, and August 26, 2016
939. Steve Vierling, planning supervisor for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers
940. George Vila, supervising engineer and contract manager for Metropolitan Sewer District
941. Corey Vissing-Smith, instructor at University of Cincinnati, paddled the lower Mill Creek in July 2015 for a summer teachers' course
942. Paul Viviano, a Bob Cregge son-in-law who had the catch of the day for the July 10, 2016, Mill Creek fishing trip with Buckeye United Fly Fishers
943. Emily Vogedes, University of Cincinnati student in Mike Miller's urban ecology class
944. Meg Vogle, photographer for The Cincinnati Enquirer
945. Allyn Vonderchek, husband of Annie Laurie-Blair who went on the 100th voyage
946. Blair Vonderchek, son of Annie Laurie-Blair, first paddled during a ReCreation Celebration trip from Evendale to Reading on September 18th, 2016
947. Glen Vonderembse, environmental engineer for Ohio EPA's Division of Surface Water; paddled lower Mill Creek
948. Stiney Vonderhaar, member of Evendale Village Council

949. Jack Wachter, environmental/safety specialist for Cincinnati's Office of Environmental Management
950. Cheri Wagner, Miami University graduate student and West Fork Mill Creek researcher
951. Martha Walker, member of Sierra Club's Miami Group
952. Marilyn Wall, chair of Environmental Community Organization
953. Dave Wallace, "Dynamic Dave" from Leadership Cincinnati, first paddled on the record-setting October 25th, 2015, float with 42 other people
954. Josh Wallace, U.C. student who paddled from Twin Creek Preserve in Sharonville to Reading on Sept. 5, 2015
955. Tom Wallace, first paddled with his adult son Dave during ReCreation Celebration canoe trip from Evendale to Reading on September 18th, 2016
956. Brooke Walter, granddaughter of Dick Moser
957. Casey Walter, civil engineer
958. Logan Walter, grandson of Dick Moser
959. Brian Wamsley, planner for Hamilton County Planning & Development
960. Jerry Wang, owner of Wang Engineering
961. May Wang, daughter of Jerry Wang
962. Amber Wanner, ecological engineer with Williams Creek Consulting
963. Keneesha Ward, University of Cincinnati student of environmental journalism
964. Nancy Ward, administrative specialist for Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
965. Tessa Ward, U.C. student who paddled the lower Mill Creek on September 2, 2015, and July 13, 2016 with a summer college ecology class
966. Merrill Warren, University of Cincinnati student of environmental journalism
967. Dwaymon D. Warren, employee of Metropolitan Sewer District and student at Cincinnati State
968. Daniel Watkins, U.C. student who paddled from Twin Creek Preserve in Sharonville to Reading on Sept. 5, 2015
969. Tess Webb, environmental science student at U.C., paddled the lower Mill Creek on Sept. 2, 2015
970. Ken Wegenhart, treatment supervisor for Metropolitan Sewer District of Greater Cincinnati
971. Josh Wehmann, University of Cincinnati student of environmental journalism
972. Ye Wei, Chinese citizen studying geographic information systems at University of Cincinnati
973. Heather Weillau, employee of the Bayer Becker engineering consulting firm, paddled from Sharonville to Reading in March 2014
974. Alan Weiner, chair of West Fork Mill Creek Greenway Task Force
975. Judy Weiner, wife of Alan Weiner
976. Carl Weiser, editor, The Cincinnati Enquirer
977. Glen Weist, paddled on March 22, 2014, from Twin Creek Preserve to Reading Public Works
978. Jackson Weist, son of Glen Weist
979. Joe Wessels, freelance writer and photographer who is a stringer for The Cincinnati Post
980. Carl West, resident of South Fairmount neighborhood
981. Mary Ann Westendorf, employee of Cincinnati Parks and friend of Dave Gamstetter
982. Dr. Lena Wiedermann, wife of Dr. Ishi Buffam, U.C. biology professor
983. Lynn White, education specialist, Butler Soil & Water Conservation District
984. Robert White, editorial page editor for The Cincinnati Post
985. Timothy Whiteside, citizen who took part in Mill Creek ReCreation Celebration in September 2013
986. Carol Wick, Wyoming resident who likes to paddle streams and help analyze stream samples
987. Tom Wick, a good husband who shares interests with his wife, Carol

988. Ken Wilhelm, graduate student of biology at the University of Cincinnati
989. Joe Wilker, technical machinist who innovates with 3-D printing, paddled from Reading to Carthage on June 25, 2016
990. Coleman Williams, U.C. student who paddled from Twin Creek Preserve in Sharonville to Reading on Sept. 5, 2015
991. Olivia Williams, summer 2014 intern for Mill Creek Watershed Council of Communities
992. Joe Wilmers, social worker for Cincinnati Public Schools
993. James B. Wilson, Western Hills resident
994. Jim Wilson, cultural resources consultant at BHE Environmental, Inc.
995. Leah Wilson, citizen of Reading
996. Tom Winston, chief of Ohio EPA's Southwest District Office
997. Jake Witte, information technology specialist who describes himself as an "urban/environmental explorer," paddled on October 22, 2016
998. Jane Wittke, environmental communications coordinator for OKI Regional Council of Governments
999. Pete Witzler, University of Cincinnati student in Mike Miller's urban ecology class 1000. Meredith Woedl, performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe in the Hartwell/Carthage area with 15 other volunteers from Kao Corporation 1001. Matt Woehrmyer, employee of the General Mill cereal factory along the Mill Creek in Sharonville
1002. Barbara Wolf, videographer for the Mill Creek Restoration Project
1003. Missy Wolf, a U.S. military veteran who visited the lower Mill Creek during the morning of August 6th, 2016, as an optional Paddlefest side trip from the Ohio River
1004. Chelsey Wolterman, marketing specialist for PSARA Technologies
1005. Greg Wood, Paddlefest volunteer who explored the mouth of the Mill Creek on July 21, 2016, as a preview for the big show on August 6, 2016
1006. Sandy Wood, Paddlefest volunteer who explored the mouth of the Mill Creek on July 21, 2016, as a preview for the big show on August 6, 2016
1007. Tim Wooten, Frito Lay employee in Florida Panhandle and son-in-law of Commodore Koehler
1008. Patrick Wright, University of Cincinnati student
1009. Quisheng Wu, Chinese citizen studying geographic information systems at University of Cincinnati 1010. Elissa Yancey, journalism professor at University of Cincinnati and freelance reporter for WCPO digital 1011. Kimberley York, environmental specialist for Butler County Department of Environmental Services
1012. Ray Zehler, local, state and national officer of the Izaak Walton League of America
1013. John Zannoni, chemist for Procter & Gamble
1014. Cathy Zhou (Xichen), instructor for University of Cincinnati, paddled the lower Mill Creek in July 2015 for a summer teachers' course 1015. John Zimmerman, chief of plan formulation branch for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers 1016. Kyle Zimmerman, performed Mill Creek cleanup by canoe in the Hartwell/Carthage area with 15 other volunteers from Kao Corporation 1017. Amelia Zomi, University of Cincinnati student